Great Britain Queen Elizabeth I The Imprisonment of Mary, Queen of Scots 1569 (16 September) letter signed on laid watermark paper by the Queen "Elizabeth R" to the Earl of Shrewsbury: "Right trusty and right welbeloved counsyn, we grete you well. Although you have ben by orselves and by our lres and instructions sufficiently informed how you should have regard to the chardg committed unto youe, wherein we have found you carefull and dilligent; yet as tyme nowe serveth having for the occasion given us to renewe youe our former commaundements and instructions. We have thought mete to send this bearer our trusty and welbeloved servaunt Henry Skipwith one of our Equiery, as well to some other of our noble men neare to youe as to yourself, whom, we requier youe shuld creditt in such things as he shall declare to youe to be our pleasr. Given under or. signet at or. town of Southampton the XVIth day of September 1569, the elventh yere of or. reign." Endorsed on reverse "To our right trusty and right welbeloved counsyn the Erle of Shresbury". Housed in a glazed (355x325mm.) frame in which it is sold, though the document is easily removed. Some reinforcements along folds and usual foxing associated with documents of this age; a superb example of Elizabeth I's signature and a document of utmost historical importance. To appreciate this document in full, one must refer to the Calendar of the Cecil Papers of Hatfield House and the Calendar of State Papers relating to Scotland of the British Museum: 1569 (12 Sept.) (Item 1137 British Museum), Cecil's Draft. Queen Elizabeth to the Earl of Huntingdon, Shrewsbury and Viscount Hereford - Elizabeth sends Skipwith to relay the Queen's instructions. Endorsed "sent by Mr. Skipwith the equyry". 1569 (15 Sept.) (Item 1327 Hatfield), Cecil's Draft. The Queen's instructions by Henry Skipwith for the Earls of Shrewsbury and Huntingdon, and Viscount Hereford "Ye are to understand how of late the Scottish Queen's cause has been by us considered, and put in deliberation to bring it to some reasonable end. We find that she, and such as solicit and labour most for her cause, intend to proceed in it otherwise than is meet or that we can consent to for our honour. We have cause to doubt that when she and her friends perceive their purple not agreeable to us there will be some secret device to procure her escape, both perilous and dishonourable to us. The Earl of Shrewsbury shall therefore take such care of her safe custody as in the beginning he had commandment, and beware of practices by such as resort out of Scotland without evident cause, being sent or permitted by Her Majesty. For the more surety the Earl shall, as he seeth cause, advertise the Earl of Huntingdon and Viscount Hereford, and require their assistance to withstand any attempt to convey her away by force, and that they be in readiness with such company of horsemen as they think themselves well assured of; and in their own persons assist the Earl to withstand any such attempt. Meantime the Queen will consider what is meet to do in her cause. These premises, with other particular things committed to him, Henry Skipwith shall declare to every of the said Lords." This dramatic message likely being the one Skipwith is charged with delivering in our letter. 1569 (18 Sept.) (Item 1140 British Museum), Shrewsbury to Cecil "By the Queen's Majesty's letters and credit to Mr. Skipwith, I see her pleasure for this Queen's safe keeping, wherein I shall have the assistance of the Earl of Huntingdon and Viscount Hereford to reset any attempt to escape ... Would that my body were fit to serve but for want of rest, I hourly feel danger to my life by 'relaps', notwithstanding all counsel of physick in this 'my restless charge'." 1569 (19 Sept.) (Item 1141 British Museum), Shrewsbury to Elizabeth Acknowledging by receipt of her letters and commands by Mr. Skipwith, which he will obey to the uttermost of his power and will execute them as far as the weakness of his "painful bodie" will suffer. 1569 (22 Sept.) (Item 1335 Hatfield) Queen Elizabeth to the Earl of Huntingdon, Cecil's Draft. Requiring Huntingdon to take charge of the Queen of Scots. They are to confer how to reduce the Queen's train to 30, and to give order prohibiting such common resort to the Queen, and her sending posts as she hath done to the burden of the Queen's poor subjects. Notes: After defeat at the battle of Langside, Mary, Queen of Scots fled from Scotland to Carlisle Castle. In January of 1569, Mary was moved gradually toward Sheffield and the Earl of Shrewsbury's home where she was to be held permanently. Owing to a hold up in supplies for the Earl's home, Mary was moved to Tutbury, arriving 4th February 1569. A sketched plan of Mary's accommodation at Tutbury is held by the British Library (MS Additional 33594, f. 174). It is understood that Mary was moved to Wingfield Manor in April though returned to Tutbury in September with an increased guard following Leonard Dacre's attempts to liberate her. It is probable that Mary is at Tutbury at the time of this letter given the reinstatement of Shrewsbury's orders for Mary's imprisonment. Henry Skipwith (-1588): Keeper of Ampthill great park in 1565, equerry of royal stables by 1569, Justice of the Peace for Leicestershire ca. 1569, steward of crown lands 1570, commissioner to enforce the Acts of Uniformity Supremacy for the dioceses of Lincoln and Peterborough, and commissioner of musters for Leicestershire in 1583. Skipwith was first described as the Queen's servant in April 1559 when he was granted the reversion to the keepership of Ampthill Great Park. In our letter, Skipwith is employed by Elizabeth to a secret message to the Earls Huntingdon and Shrewsbury and Viscount Hereford regarding Mary, Queen of Scots. In 1571, Skipwith was again employed as during the Duke of Norfolk affair as Lord Burghley spy and in guarding the Duke of Norfolk at the Tower of London. It is Skipwith who discovered the cipher and channels whereby Norfolk was communicating with the world outside, and secured his admission to receiving £2,000 of Mary's money from the bishop of Ross. Skipwith was never knighted probably by choice as a trusted though secretive servant to the Queen. He was however handsomely rewarded for his services in leases of land shortly after the 1569 troubles referred to here. Henry Skipwith's sister, Margaret Skipwith was well connected with the crown already, having been rumoured to be a candidate for King Henry VIII's wife, and most certainly among his mistresses. Margaret would later marry Sir Peter Carew a staunch opponent of Mary Tudor's marriage to Philip of Spain and important proponent of Elizabeth's reign. PROVENANCE: Valued by Maggs Bros in 1962 and not on the market since Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. For more information please view Terms and Conditions for Buyers.

Great BritainHast Hast, Post Hast Hast, With Diligence1618 (4 Feb.) entire letter headed "For His Majesties Affaires" sent from William Ward, Mayor of Dover to Lord Zouche, Warden of Cinque Ports, London, endorsed "Hast Hast, Post Hast Hast, With Diligence" and further endorsed with times of arrival at Canterbury, Sittingborne, Rochester, Dartford and London having left Dover at 9 in the morning:"Canterbury ... at noonSittingborne at three in the afternoonRochester att five o clock in the afternoonDartofrd at past 7 at nightLondon past 10 in the night".Contents on separate leaf concern Lord Zouche's pinnacle Silver Falcon, ready to sail for Virginia - "the pinnacle sails at once, the shippes be in readiness & fully furnished".Part wax seal remaining and some minor foxing commensurate with age. An immensely significant item with remarkably early relevance to settlement in Jamestown, Virginia.provenance: Gerald E. WellburnNotes: Edward la Zouche, 11th Baron Zouche (1556-1625), Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports (1615-1625), remembered for his lone vote against the condemnation of Mary, Queen of Scots.In May of 1607, voyagers aboard the Susan Constant, the Godspeed and the Discovery settled in Jamestown, Virginia. By 1618 plantations had been established and workers were recruited to cultivate the lands and inhabit the settlement. The Journey of the Silver Falcon was surely of an entrepreneurial nature and is known to have multiple investors: Zouche suplied the boat and invested £200, Francis Augur the Ship's Steward provided commodoties for those on board which were estimated to be between £900 and £1,100 in value and Jacob Braems undertook to pay the wages of all aboard on their return. Rife with obstacles the ship would not set sail until 2 March 1619 with twenty-five men on board.Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. Great Britain William Pitt the Younger 1784 (2 January) A.L.S. to Sir A. Edmonston Bt. and written from his home in Berkley Square. The letter requests the attendance of the recipient in the House of Commons on the 12th January, " ... It is my intention on that day to submit to the consideration of Parliament a plan for the Government of India; I am convinced that the bill upon that subject lately under discussion owed a great part of its support to the prevailing opinion that some regulation was necessary". Archival repair around edges and central fold. A valuable document relating to Pitt's first Opening of Parliament as Prime Minister. The letter is numbered in the upper corner "162". King George III was furious with the plans of the newly appointed Fox-North administration and dismissed them by letter written on 18th December. William Pitt accepted the offer to form an administration. The previously proposed India bill effectively gave Fox a permanent right to nominate rulers of India. The King had organised the rejection of this bill by the House of Lords and this was the determining reason for his removal of Fox. This delicate subject was the reason for this carefully worded letter by the new Prime Minister Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. Great Britain Queen Victoria, Zulu War 1868 volume of "Leaves from the Journal of Our Life in the Highlands" inscribed and signed in the Queen's hand "To Colonel Evelyn Wood G.C.B. V.C. from Victoria R. Balmoral Sept. 11 1879". Some minor damage to binding and some light foxing to some pages otherwise fine and of great interest. Notes: The volume was signed and given to Colonel Evelyn Wood by Her Majesty Queen Victoria on 11 September 1879 at Balmoral Castle. Both Wood and Major Redvers Buller were invited as guests of the monarch to spend time in the Highlands for Wood and Buller were two of the few British officers to have survived the Anglo-Zulu War of 1879 with their reputations enhanced. The Queen was keen to hear their views upon the recent conflict which had so gripped the nation and wanted to quiz the two men about the final battle of Ulundi and their thoughts on the events surrounding the disastrous British defeat at Isandlwana. As a result of the visit Wood and Victoria became firm friends and the friendship lasted until the Queen's death. Wood was even a pallbearer at the monarch's funeral. Upon Wood's death in December 1919, one of his housemaids was allowed to take possession of one item from Wood's house, Rivenhall, near Harlow in Essex and she choose this book. It stayed in her family and was handed down through the generations. In 2007 a biography of Wood was published and the author was approached by the grandson of the housemaid to see if he wanted to purchase the book, which he duly did. It is thus the first time that it has come to auction. Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. For more information please view Terms and Conditions for Buyers.

Burma An Archive Relating to the Forwarding Agent, Lieut. Thomas Waghorn A superb holding of archival material illustrating Waghorn's efforts during the First Burmese War and workings of the steamship "Enterprise" including Waghorn's own manuscript copy of the logbook for it's maiden voyage, an 113 day journey from London to Calcutta via St. Tome & Cape Town (August to December 1825). Waghorn attempted to win a 100,000 rupee prize offered by the merchants of Calcutta for a rapid steam-assisted voyage from London to Calcutta and back in fewer than seventy days each way; half of the price was awarded in appreciation of the bravery shown on behalf of the crew. Waghorn recorded the usual log and observations, and on the reverse of one page scribbled down calculations of days steaming, sailing, in port, speeds and rates of coal consumption. It is following this experience that Waghorn became interested in pursuing a faster route for overland mail between Britain and India via the Suez Canal. Also, a series of correspondence (September - December 1826) including Captain Lowe's orders to Waghorn while in command of the Matchless Cutter, Akyab; Letter from the Marine Board requesting Waghorn's certificates for the positions held during the First Burmese War; Two letter from Captain Forbes to Waghorn as Commander of the Flotilla, Akyab. An invaluable resource to any collector with an interest in Forwarding Agents, Overland Mail between Britain and India, and the First Burmese War. Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. China Communism and the Civil War 1927 -1930 Album relating to Misses Grubb and Galbraith, British teachers at the I Fang Girls Collegiate School at Changsha, Hunan during the Communist insurgency. Letters from the British Consul, the commanders of HMS Woodcock and Woodlark stationed at Changsa, urge them to leave. "By staying you are doing your country a great disservice. Should anything happen to you, your country would inevitably be involved in serious consequences". Copy replies, telegrams, press cuttings, letters from friends and colleagues, printed passports, customs bills add to the interest. The I Fang School was the birthplace of Mao Zedong's communism. Winifred Galbraith published her experiences in "The Dragon Sheds His Skin" (1928). An important archive housed in a Chinese paper album, sewn blue cloth, some 90 pages, plus blanks. France Revolutionary France 1790-93 Acts (18) passed for the creation and use of assignats, including: the creation of eight hundred million assignats, regarding artists and entrepreneurs who are involved in the production of assignats, arranging payment for those in production, relating to the exchange of small assignats for copper money, relating to charges through criminal courts those involved in the production of fake assignats. Also 1759 two leaves titled "Announcements, Posters, and Miscellaneous Notices" listing land available for purchase or lease. A fascinating bank of material. Notes: To pay debts, the National Assembly issued a bond in 1789 bearing 5% interest using nationalised church lands as security. By 1790 the Assembly agreed to make the assignat into a paper currency with circulation increasing from 400,000,000 livres to 1,200,000,000. The initial economic impact was beneficial though both distrust of paper money and fear that the current revolutionary regime may not last meant that the assignat quickly depreciated. FranceJean Cocteau1955-60 an important archive of nine autograph letters signed with transcriptions, each complete with original hand addressed stamped envelopes, sent from Jean Cocteau to Jaxqueline Roque (The wife of Pablo Picasso. The contents are hugely insightful as to the nature of their relationship; Cocteau refers to Roque as "My Jacqueline", "Little goat of Mr. Seguin", "Faithful Grelot (Bell)", "Lola de Valence" and "Little Doe Belly", referring to Picasso as "the magnificent one" and "Paco".In a letter of 1955 (26 July) Cocteau writes "If I am bothering you it is because I see time is getting shorter and this sword is dear to my hear ... You alone with your persuasive softness and exquisite tenderness are capable of releasing this blade from its cottoned sleeve and place it in the hands of Picasso. Between two film transparencies, he would finish it. Between two vase at Mrs. Remie's. A simple mixture of twigs, goose feathers, laurel, and olive branches would becomes like his goats and if the dentist's involvement bothers him, I would entrust the task to Cartier who would handle it, but do not leave me in the dark. I am so overwhelmed by work and tourists, but a word from you would give me strength. S.O.S. from Cap Santo-Sospir."1955 (12 August) "A kiss on your admirable snout that consoles the buttocks of Miss Beach, Miss Europe, an Miss Earth."1955 (20 August):"S.O.S.Blue bell, where are you, where are you all?In the magazines we still are somewhat together. But...I have four days of recording speeches. Remains the sword"A pencil illustration of a male in glasses and a female having sex is set within the text. Accompanied by Union Francaise de Experts certificate (2019)Among other references to his work, Cocteau refers to his poem "La party d'echecs" and his speech at the Royal Academy of Belgium. Much of the content places Cocteau firmly in the circle of Picasso, or what Cocteau refers to as the "heroic epoch" comprising individuals such as Roland Penrose, Fernand Leger, Suzanne Ramie and Apollinaire, all of whom are mentioned.A remarkable group.Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. Lot 2066

(x) From the Mayflower Collection Elizabethan Privy Council A Hugely Important Document With Relevance to the Nine Years' War in Ireland 1600 (31 May) letter from Sir Hugh Portman and John Colles to the Council, the address panel reading "To the Right Honourable the Lordes of the Majesties most honourable privie Concell geve theis", claiming £59, 10/- being the cost of a levy of 150 men, their uniform, transit and expenses for the war in Ireland. At the foot of the document, Lord Treasurer Buckhurst instructs a Mr. Skinner to make out the payment. Document torn at head and new paper added, some text loss though a good document with relevance to Ireland Notes: Sir Hugh Portman served as chief justice of the Queen's bench in Mary's reign - he and his son are known for extending the Somerset estates. Listed as having provided a horse and recruits for the Nine Year's War in Ireland which brought him some critics locally. In the summer of 1600, George Carew launches an attack on Fitzthomas' forces, reportedly killing 1,200 and taken the surrender of over 10,000 during this time. It is likely that Portman and Colles' enforcements were in aid of this endeavour. Subject to 5% tax on Hammer Price in addition to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium.

Levingstoun knight and John Levingstoun", further endorsed "To all Mayors, Sheriffs, Justices of the Peace, Baliffs, Constables, Heads of Boroughs, Post Masters and all other the King's Majesty's officers and loving subjects to whom it may appertain", instructing that "Sir William Levingstoun of Kilsythe Kinght and Jogn Levingstoun [are to] repair towards London to His Majesty for performing of their orders requiring some hast and expedition. These are therefore to will and demand you in His Majesty's name and authority that you can furnish them sufficient post horses and one horse for their guide for carrying them thence in their said journey upon their reasonable charge as accustomed". Given at Edinburgh and signed "Montrose Can[cellarius]", by the Lord Chancellor of Scotland, the third Earl of Montrose. Complete wafer seal with very minor paper loss, otherwise good and an important early Stuart document. Notes: At this time, royal mail was sent privately via household employed messengers, Richard Mynsterlee being one such messenger. This is an extraordinary insight into the incredible arrangements of His Majesty's Post. Subject to 5% tax on Hammer Price in addition to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium.

(x) From the Mayflower Collection A Most Significant Group of Documents Relating to British Recusants 1593-1679 four documents: 1593 (5 Sept.) ALS with address panel from a Clement Spilman (former Sheriff of Norfolk) to his successor, Bassaborne Gawdy regarding his cousin who he believes to be a recusant, reading "I understand there is a commyson com downe to enquir for recusancs goods and landes". A superb, early private letter with direct reference to Recusants. 1626 (10 January) "Recusant's Licence" signed by Deputy Lord Lieutenant, Sir John Fenwick, and witnessed by four justices of the peace in Northumberland each represented by papered seals, granting the recusant Sir Edward Radcliffe the right to travel more than five miles from his home in order to attend business in the King's Court (Ex. Sothebys Rawlins Collection). A hugely significant document, unusual to not be held by public records;.1635 (8 May) ALS from Lancelot Allgood to Sir Edward Radcliff regarding "monies owing to his Majestie in the yeare when I ws undersheriff to Mr. Robert Brondling, whcih asyett were not collected being vicondalls and the town of Devilston ... he [servant] will deliver unto yow upon payment hereof and dhow yow the warrant which I have to collect the same bye, and the exctracte fourth of the Pipe". Vicandalls were regular payment by sheriffs to the crown, charged against the sheriff in the Exchequer accounts knows as the Pipe. Radcliffe was a recusant liable to an annual fine for being one.1679 (28 November) warrant to pay William Ballowe, a Royal Messenger, £40 for travels between August and September with commissions against Recusants in the courts of Surrey, Sussex, South Hampton, Wiltshire, Dorset, Somerset, Devon and Cornwall. Signed "Ro: Howard" and by Ballowe on receipt. An immensely rare trio with enormous interest and relevance to the little known society of recusants Notes: The Recusant movement formed in response to the advent of the Church of England after the English Reformation. Recusants clung to the ideals of the Catholic Church. In 1558 Queen Elizabeth passed the Recusancy Acts that imposed fines, confiscation of property, imprisonment or death on those found guilty. Generally recusants belonged to gentry families in Northern England. Among other well-known recusants, Guy Fawkes is perhaps the best known who famously attempted to blow up the Houses of Parliament on 5th November 1605.
