The spot where they were found is in the parish of Selborne, half-way between Alton and Petersfield, on the western border of Woolmer Forest, about a quarter of a mile N.W. of Woolmer Pond, and close to the point where the Gault clay, which lies below the hills connecting the North with the South Downs, joins the Lower Green sand of the forest. Within a mile of the same spot, in another part of Woolmer Forest, a considerable number of broken swords and spear-heads, &c. (all of bronze) were found one or two years before ; and at the latter place, a year afterwards, about one hundred coins of the Tetrici and Victorinus, with a few of Gallienus, were also found.The two pots, in which the 29,802 coins were found, were both of the same size and form : pear-shaped, rather more than a foot high, with a maximum diameter of about a foot. The exterior ornamentation (which was slight and simple) was not the same in both. The upper parts were broken, and the lids or covers were missing. The coins in them were closely packed, and caked together with dirt and verdigris ; so as to make it necessary to have those specimens which were worthy of special attention and study (the best of which are now collected in a cabinet at Blackmoor) cleaned." iii) 'IF', by private treaty, 1984 - £14 iv) 'IF', by private treaty, 1983 - £3 v) ~ Found 1962 by 'Gramp Balcombe' at 26 Rudds Lane, Haddenham, in garden on left of driveSubject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. The finder kindly supplied us with photographs and subsequently brought us the coin to study. Coenwulf of Mercia, Cross and Wedges type, c. 805/7-c. 810 (North 344). Canterbury, moneyer Duda. Obv. + COENVVLF/REX M Rev. + DVDA MONETA, Weight: 1.40g (21.6gr.). Die-axis: not recorded. Duda, a Canterbury moneyer, struck coins of the Tribach type for Coenwulf and Cuthred of Kent in the period c. 798-805 and coins of the Cross-and-Wedges type for Cuthred c. 805-7, but he was not hithertoknown to have struck coins of that type in the name of Coenwulf c. 805/7-810. Instead he appears to have had his own distinctive Cross-and-Quatrefoil design, the small flans indicating that they belong before c. 810. However, the new coin from Colney shows that he did briefly use the Cross-and-Wedges type under Coenwulf, before adopting the other design. A close examination of the obverse reveals that under the legend there was an earlier one which can be read +CVBRE[II] for +Cuthred rex / Canl (Fig. 2). The coin was probably struck from an altered die of Cuthred, rather than being overstruck on a Cross-and-Wedges coin of his, for there are no signs of overstriking on the bust or on the reverse, and there would be no reason to restrike coins which evidently belonged to the same issue. There is one other coin of this type, by the moneyer Eaba, which also appears to have been struck from an altered Cuthred die." It has been suggested that Coenwulf and Cuthred shared access to the Canterbury mint, but it seems more likely that between c. 800 or a little later and his death in 807, Cuthred operated the Canterbury mint to the exclusion of Coenwulf." On Cuthred's death Coenwulf resumed control of the mint, and the Duda and Eaba coins presumably belong to the period immediately following this." Found at Colney (Norfolk), late 1983~ Recorded with the Fitzwilliam Museum, ref. EMC 1984.0006 ~Interestingly no Cuthred coin can be traced with the unaltered obverse die at Canterbury, but both the Saffron Walden (2002) and Alfriston (2014) finds present different reverse dies. This probably suggests that the reverse die encountered on the present specimen had almost been exhausted during the reign of Cuthred, but was still just about serviceable at the time of his demise and Coenwulf's revisions at the mint. Consequently the obverse may well have been quite new at this point of transition, to account for why Dudda decided to simply recut the obverse legends rather than scrap the matrix altogether. In comparison to the other contemporary moneyers, not only is the classical canon so heavily apparent, but as too is the hand of this portrait engraver and its stylistic similarities to that used for cutting the dies of Wærheard (cf. EMC 2013.0009). As Naismith notes: "They were presumably struck in the immediate aftermath of the death of Cuthred in 807, and provide a good illustration of the significance attached to the name, but not the portrait that appeared on coinage at this time." On 7 July 1870, Sotheby's auction rooms saw the dispersal of W. Cotton Risley's collection, late Curate of Deddington, Oxon. His cabinet featured amongst others Saxon coins, ten Burgred Pennies, one Aethelberht, one Aethelred I, and four Alfred coins, all described as in 'varied' condition. The latter two were noted thus: "Alfred, bust to right, as Hawkins n. 172, the moneyers HEREMOD. and TORTHMUND. the letters curiously diphthonged, both fine." Such a collection would be entirely consistent with an early 10th Century hoard, the mixture and absence of duplication within the Burgredians suggestive of a selected parcel from a larger find." VII, no. 9 same obverse die]; Spink 1084, a small metal flaw before face and some peripheral striking softness to legends, with a further trace of smoothing and contact marks to cheek, otherwise a thoroughly wholesome coin with a deeply alluring 'fine style' and indeed 'true to life' portrait of 'the Elder' - the undisputed "finest known" of the five traced from this obverse die, and perhaps of any numismatic canon of the House of Wessex; with spots of red wax in fields from earlier plate impressions; with rich and attractive cabinet toning, a handsomely bold very fine / extremely fine, a great rarity and a frequent 'dead-cert' for catalogue illustration in sale dispersals, with an exemplary and entirely reconstructed pedigree since last offered in these rooms in 1984 Provenance T Mathews, by private treaty, 1985 - £540 Rev. Arnold Mallinson, Spink 39, 6 December 1984, lot 75 - "obverse very fine but bust and hair extensively tooled, reversely extremely fine, very rare" [recte] - £340 Spink, by private treaty with Reverend Mallinson G Drabble, Part I, Glendining, 4 July 1939, lot 398* - "in beautiful state and very rare" - £7.10.0 [Spink for stock] T Bliss, Sotheby's, 22 March 1916, lot 88* - "very fine and very rare" - £5.0.0 ["Pauyer"] H Montagu, First Portion, Sotheby's, 18 November 1895, lot 576 - "very fine and very rare" - £3.5.0 [Verity for Bliss] In the 1956 Seaby Bulletin, a cataloguer observed: "the bust of fine style, probably a real attempt at portraiture". To this can be added the notice that the reverse die is also to be found with the Circumscription obverse, as recovered from the Morley St. Peter and Cuerdale troves. The Spink cataloguer for the Mallinson sale, incidentally the last time this example would appear publicly for sale, interpreted the fine detailed incisions of the hair and furrows of Edward's drapery as 'extensive tooling'. This is simply not shared by the present Spink cataloguer. Unsurprisingly, despite Mallinson's detailed pedigree work pre-dating even the Great War, the Drabble connection was entirely forgotten in 1984, much as Drabble had omitted the Bliss and all-to-sought-after Montagu connection. In the Mallinson catalogue, as well as in study of the Drabble and Bliss plate illustrations, no further disturbance can be noted for or surrounding the portrait. The mis-interpretation of tooling can be thoroughly dismissed by direct comparison to the 'Rome Hoard' (1929, lot 39) coin, in which same obverse die was employed. Even from the grainy plate illustration from that sale catalogue, the fine incision-work from the knot of hair to the brow of head are clearly faithful to the original die matrix. The same observation can be made in comparison to the the even clearer example from the Montagu 1895 sale (Portion I, lot 575), where this very coin happened to once sit happily as a venerable neighbour. Were further proof still required, study of the Finn FPL (January 1977, no. 77) provides a recent demonstration of this same remarkable Anglo-Saxon artistic canon. Patrick Finn, commented: "the best and most lifelike portrait I have seen on a coin of Edward the Elder. A coin to be exhibited as an example of Anglo-Saxon art.". Alas, the coin much like the present double-die matched example was a casualty of the low-ebb market and would remain on his books until (FPL 14, 1998, no. 90), but his observation undoubtedly stands the test of time. The 'Haddenham' Collection of English Coins | Edward the Confessor (1042-1066), 'Hammer Cross' Type, Penny, 1059-1062, Bath, Godric, + EADPAR-RD RE, crowned, draped and bearded bust right, trefoil-tipped sceptre before, rev. + GODRIC ON BADEN: voided short cross with each limb terminating in incurved segment of circle, 1.33g [20.53grns], 3h (Hildebrand - [Type G]; Freeman 28; SCBI 24 [West Country], 707-708 same dies; SCBI 42 [South Eastern ~ Sedlescombe Hoard], 1418 same dies; Lockett I, 842a same dies; cf. H A Parsons [BNJ, 1921], p. 40; North 828; BMC XI; Spink 1182), legends doubled with further die clashing, otherwise lightly toned, and of good metal, the attribution and pedigree certain, with only thirteen coins of this type known to Freeman for Bath (10 of Osmær; 3 of Godric) of which all of the latter are in Museums, presumed UNIQUE to commerce thus Provenance Warwick & Warwick 748, 20 August 2014, lot 354 - £343 with accompanying note of Victorian-era stationery, stating: "One of the Saxon Coins found in a metal vessel at Sedlescombe [near] Battle, which probably were part of Harold's military chest [exchequer] for the defence of Hastings against William the Conqueror - They belonged to the reign of Edward the Confessor. They probably failed to arrive before the battle and were hastily hidden in the panic & flight which followed Harold's death." Sedlescombe Hoard (1876), deposited, c. 1066~ Found by a labourer in a small iron pot whilst digging a drain in a meadow near the village of Battle on 26 August 1876. G S Hill, writing in the Numismatic Chronicle (1879, pp. 154-156), stated: "Within [much oxidised pot] was part of a leather bag, containing a pint of small old coins, silver pennies of four different sorts, but all of Edward the Confessor, who reigned A.D. 1042 to 1066. The manor in which they were found is said to have belonged to Earl Godwin, father of King Harold II. Some of the coins were very brittle and broken." Whilst many were dispersed before Treasure Trove stepped in, it is believed as many as 3,000 coins originally complemented the hoard. The local antiquarian Major Boyce Harvey Combe FSA exhibited four coins at the meeting of Society of Antiquaries in June 1877. Anthony Freeman noted: The recorded moneyers are Aegelmær, Eorlewine, Godric, Osmær and Wædel. This material enables a clear pattern to be identified of Bath as a two-moneyer mint, its needs met initially by Ægelmaer and Waedel (both of whom worked prior to Edward's accession), and their respective successors Osmær and Godric. Osmær works into the post-Conquest period, but Godric is succeeded by Eorlewine in the Hammer Cross type. The absence of coins from the Pyramid type and from Harold II's reign marks a change in the mint's character. Thereafter minting appears to be erratic. Osmær continues at work but coins erratically (BMC types I, V and VIII in William's I reign), being joined in BMC III by Brungar and in BMC VIII by Ægelmær and possibly Godesbrand. The stability of size and degree of continuity among moneyers are impressive. There are no single-type moneyers and the mint appears free from whatever factors may have determined the changes in moneyer complement at neighbouring mints, such as Gloucester or Bristol. Bath's moneyers appear to pursue their career exclusively in the service of the mint, and the names of Ægelmaer, Eorlewine, Osmær and Wædel are unique in Edward's reign to Bath; except in so far as it must conform broadly to the requirements of minting policy, the Bath mint appears to function in complete isolation. Public Collections and B. Other Coins' in the 1996 SNC corpus and confirmed as an example unknown to Purefoy. However, it is possible that the Spink Auction 6, 11 October 1979, lot 454 or SNC, Spetember 1984, no. 5326 listing, of which neither carry an illustration, could be Mathews own source.Nevertheless, almost certainly a stray from:Denge Marsh (1739), HoardThe Denge Marsh Hoard was reconstructed from Antiquarian accounts by the late Professor Metcalf for the Numismatic Chronicle in 1957 (Vol. XVI, pp. 186-190). His opening remarks state simply: "there are quite a number of conflicting accounts of this hoard in eighteenth century literature".. However, as Purefoy adduced some four decades later from his sample size of 50 coins: "The recorded history of 40 of the coins [80%] starts in England and none of these has a pedigree that conflicts with the possibility that it came originally from the [Denge Marsh] hoard." As documented by the late Peter Purefoy, and corroborated by this cataloguer's separate enquiries: "In the first or Profile Left type only Canterbury, Dover and Romney are represented [for Kent]. The coins disclose that three moneyers were striking at the important mint at Canterbury at this time, and we have respectively eight, five and nine of their coins. One of the moneyers Wulfred, used at least two pairs of dies. Dover has one moneyer in evidence with four coins all from the same dies. Rochester, Sandwich and Hythe have no coins of Type I to show. But Romney is exceptional. In fact, the incentive to write this article came from the listing in the Numismatic Circular for June 1996 of a Type I Penny of Romney which is the fiftieth coin of its mint and type that I have found, all struck from the same pair of dies".It is now all but certain that the source of most, if not all known examples of the Profile Left type of William I Penny struck by Wulfmær at Romney must originate from the Denge Marsh trove, on account of tone, weight standard, striking quality, defects and production 'treatments' and of course, rather tellingly, the universal die matching of all known examples from a sole obverse and reverse die. Not even the recent and comprehensive Chew Valley Find (2019) presented a new example for this type, even though striking by the moneyer Wulfmær at Romney are present for Harold II. Compellingly, a single further find has been recorded with the Fitzwilliam Museum (EMC 2019.0282) also reported as from "Denge Marsh" which may ultimately reveal the find location of this early trove.Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. On stooping down to take hold of it he discovered a small hole into which he thrust his hand and brought out a number of coins. His companions followed his example. Though they did not consider their treasure to be more than old buttons, they concealed a part of them in an adjoining potato field and others they took into the village, but treating them as of no value some they flung into a pond and others they flung about the road. Half-a-dozen villagers were soon attracted to the spot and commenced a regular scramble for the booty. As some obtained more than others the parents of the boys were dissatisfied and appealed to Mr. Dunn, of Alresford, the owner of the land. This gentleman claimed from the parties the delivery of the coins to him, which was in a measure complied with, and the same evening Mr. Dunn received about 6,500 coins. The leaden box was much mutilated by the eagerness of the people to possess the coins. Apparently it was enclosed in a woodenbox, which had all perished except its iron handle. According to the account the coins were packed in regular layers, but the box was not full. About 100 are known to have been sold by a woman to a person in Southampton. The owner distributed the amount he received for them amongst variouscharities and rewarded the finders.Such is the version of the story given by the late Mr. Hawkins, of the British Museum, in February, 1834. He examined, he tells us, 6,500 of the coins and found them all except about 100 to be specimens of the " Paxis " type of the Conqueror's pennies which were his last issue, a coin previously almost unknown."Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. The 'Haddenham' Collection of English Coins | James I (1603-1625), Third Coinage, Crown, 18 June 1624 - 7 July 1625, Tower, by Charles Anthony after Derick Anthony, (m.m.) IACOBVS D : G : MAG : BRIT : FRAN : ET HIB : REX, D over E (?), King on horseback trotting right, grassy ground line below, rev. (m.m.) QVÆ DEVS CONIVNXIT NEMO SEPARET •, no stops in legend except after SEPARET, square-topped and lightly garnished shield, 29.72g [458.8grns], 1h, m.m. trefoil over lys [both sides] (FRC X*/XVIII* [sale lot 35] = Tallent 40; Lingford 64 same dies; Lockett 3340 same dies; Slaney II, 326 same dies; North 2120; Spink 2664), hairline pin scratch behind King in obverse fields, softly struck to key devices and usual die clogging to peripheries, otherwise old cabinet tone, the centres close to fine, the rest good fine, the double over-mark scarce and seldom encountered in public commerce Provenance T Mathews, by private treaty, 1985 - £315 F R Cooper in his die study for the Jacobean Silver Crown coinage for the BNJ 1970, observed: "The silver crowns of James I, the design of which remained basically unchanged throughout the reign, must thus be attributed to the two artists, Charles Anthony and John Baptist van Landen. In the design of the equestrian portrait the former may well have been influenced by his father, Derick, who executed a somewhat similar portrait of Edward VI in 1551 shortly after his appointment to the post which passed direct to his son nearly fifty years later. Although the third coinage which dates from 1619 was considered by Morrisson to be of coarser workmanship, and hence the product of another engraver, no evidence has been traced to show it was the work of Holle. In the crown series there seems little inferiority, although on some third-coinage dies the lettering is very untidy. Possibly also due to wear of the main puncheon the equestrian portrait shows less detail; but third-coinage strikings are generally bolder and in higher relief than those of the first and second coinages. It will further be noted that with some of the third-coinage reverses the placing and the proportion of the shield are not well thought out. Nevertheless it is difficult to make general comparisons when many die impressions are known only in a poor state of preservation." Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. Baldwin with first refusal given to their client Grant R. Francis, Glendining, 24 March 1920, lot 106 - fine, and a rare variety - £2.12.6 [Gaze] G R Francis, BNJ (1916), 'Silver Coins of the Tower Mint of Charles, Part One: The Crowns', pp. 181-194 and Pls. I-V, and Pl. II, Fig. 4 this coin] John William Gaze is a name almost entirely erased from the consciousness of the numismatic collecting community thanks largely due to the obscurity of a plateless and provenanceless catalogue of his collection in an inter-war years sale held at Glendining. However his interest in Crowns and Jacobean gold is testified in the Spink library notations for the Grant R Francis and W B Thorpe sales at the same house in 1920/1921. Having sourced the majority of his collection from these two dispersals, and with no relevant association with the Royal or British Numismatic Societies, his greater distinctions would come in his working life. His surprisingly untold story is one of remarkable charity; and inspirational war effort through his pioneering fundraising and advocacy of 'National Flower Days' to raise comforts for the troops. Surprisingly his flower was not the Poppy as popularised from 1921 by Earl Haig, but 'anagallis arvensis' - the scarlet pimpernel - artificially mass produced by disabled Nottinghamshire children for distribution nationally. He would also successfully petition the Admiralty to introduce a 'War Service Badge' for essential workers - a policy that was adopted in December 1914. No wonder this glowing festschrift of his life was penned in the Beeston Gazette and Echo (Saturday, 14 March 1931) :- "In the days of your youth, however, you had other interests besides the development of an ingenious invention. You displayed considerable skill as a tennis player, and the records of your club games while you were in Essex show that you played with a consistent success, and attained the distinction of being elected captain of the North End Tennis Club. Cricket also claimed your allegiance, and you were for several years a playing member of the Notts Unity Cricket Club. You must however, recall with especial pleasure your early experiences as an amateur actor, when you were a member of the Athenian Dramatic Company, whose activities centred in Upton Park. Many plays of that type would now be called old-fashioned were presented by the Athenians, including 'Called Back' and 'Mr. Barnes of New York'. In these plays you generally had an important part, and sometimes acted as producer and stage manager as well. You have been for many years an ardent member of the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes, having joined the Hutchinson Lodge (no. 1250) at Beeston. Your advancement in that order has been noteworthy. In 1919, you were Supreme Grand Master of Buffaloes (AKA 'The Buffs') throughout the world, and since then you have been elected year by year for ten years as Grand Treasurer of the Order, a position of no little responsibility. During the war you took a leading part in organising the 'scarlet pimpernel' collections by means of which £10,600 was raised for the provision of 18 ambulances that were sent to the front. For your part in that highly creditable achievement you were presented with a gold jewel by the Mayor of Nottingham." This last act is confirmed in the Nottingham Evening Post (Saturday 19 April 1916) :- "Amongst the many efforts made to ameliorate the horrors of war must be ranked the scheme by the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes, who by means of street collections, are providing motor ambulances for service at the front. The variety of badge adopted for sale is the scarlet pimpernel, many thousands of which were being worn in Nottingham and the district to-day. These were the product of the local artificial flower industry, and displayed a very pretty taste in design and execution. and again in the Beeston Gazette and Echo (Saturday, 1 February 1919) :- "At a Grand Lodge Meeting, of the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes held at Worcester, last Saturday, Mr. J. W. Gaze of Beeston, was installed as Grand Prime for all England. Mr Gaze is well known in Beeston and district being the Managing Director of the Angular Works, where he originated the ring plug for shells, which saved the country a big sum for transport expenses, and also considerable time in handling them. At the outset of the war he designed the 'Scarlet Pimpernel' Red Cross flower, which resulted in nearly £9,000 being raised for the purpose of purchasing motor ambulances for the Army. They have proved of great service in removing the wounded, and as a slight acknowledgement of his services in this direction, the Mayor of Nottingham, on behalf of the Buffaloes, presented Mr. Gaze with a gold jewel on 15 November 1917. It might be mentioned that it was Mr. Gaze who originated the idea of the badge scheme, which was submitted to Mr. Winston Churchill, and later adopted for all war workers." Having been so involved in the war effort, it is perhaps no surprise that the return to peace saw Gaze's interest in the English Civil War develop. There is a distinct poignancy to his collecting specie of Charles I. As a veteran of the horrors of conflict, Gaze evidently saw comfort in the study and understanding of a similar event in the annals of British history. The traditions of 'Scarlet Pimpernel Day' continued in Nottingham long after the national adoption of the poppy as a symbol of remembrance, with the later fundraising efforts channelled towards giving deprived local children short holiday breaks to neighbouring Skegness. As a man of little renown today, and thanks only to Francis' foresight in 1916, the possibility of tracing any other coin to his collection is exceedingly remote - as such this coin is likely to remain one of the few certifiable legacies of a remarkable individual turned coin collector, and Nottingham's real life 'Scarlet Pimpernel'. Below I enumerate between 90 and 100 varieties of these, and there must be others that I have not yet come across which will turn up from time to time, and it can be taken as a moderate estimate that of these there are over one hundred dies in all . In this denomination there are found the greatest examples of that promiscuous and casual use of the dies to which I have already drawn attention, namely, 1644 C is found with at least ten different reverses, and 1643 H with seven. In 1643 there are no less than eleven obverse and twenty-eight reverse dies, while in 1644 there are respectively seven and twenty." "Probably the first half-crowns were struck from dies brought from Shrewsbury, but new reverses must have been quickly made, for they are found with the D and F obverses of Shrewsbury. The only alteration is in the form of the plume, a new iron being made for the purpose ; on the obverse, however, this new plume was used also as a mint-mark. As an exception to the rule there are more obverses than reverses, the numbers being respectively seven and five." (Morrieson, BNJ [1921], pp. 129-188) Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium.
