Royal Bank of Scotland, [front & back proof] presentation composite proof on card for the proposed £5, 1966, Presentation David Dale issue,De La Rue, production reference BN/18-7-1966/309 (reverse) and corresponding obverse BN/18-7-1966/310.Introduced in 1966, the Royal Bank of Scotland's David Dale series marked a significant departure from earlier Scottish banknote design. Rather than depicting the reigning monarch, the Bank chose David Dale (1739-1806), the Glasgow industrialist and philanthropist who had also served as Joint Agent of its Glasgow office. The series established a new visual identity for the Bank and remained in circulation, with modifications, for many years.The present presentation composite proof records an earlier stage in the development of the series. Although immediately recognisable as the David Dale issue, both the face and reverse differ in several respects from the design ultimately adopted for circulation. The portrait of Dale is arranged differently from the issued design, while the reverse substitutes the familiar view of the Royal Bank of Scotland's Head Office with a panoramic prospect of Edinburgh. An engraver's annotation identifies the scene as "City of Edinburgh, home of the Royal Bank, as seen from nearby Salisbury Crags".This proposed reverse reflects a long-established artistic tradition of portraying Edinburgh from the high ground to the south-east of the city. From the seventeenth century onwards, artists repeatedly chose this vantagepoint to depict the capital as a unified civic landscape, embracing Edinburgh Castle, the Royal Mile and the Palace of Holyroodhouse within a single composition. Rather than concentrating upon the Bank's headquarters alone, the design presents the institution within the wider setting of the city from which it emerged, offering a broader interpretation of the Bank's identity during the development of the new series.Presentation composite proofs of this nature were produced during the evolution of new banknote designs and differ fundamentally from the finished proofs and specimens prepared from approved artwork. Created for internal review, they record alternative compositions and design decisions before production commenced, many of which were subsequently abandoned. As working material, relatively few survived beyond the archives of the printer.The present proof therefore documents an early stage in the development of one of the Royal Bank of Scotland's best-known twentieth-century banknote issues. Preserving an abandoned reverse design together with an alternative arrangement of the obverse, it provides a valuable insight into De La Rue's design process and the evolution of the David Dale series before its final design was settled.(Pick unlisted), paper components of the design have partially lifted from the mounting card and the proofs display slight curvature otherwise uncirculated, the back proof has detached from the mount, while the front is beginning to separate, presentation folder displays a minor bend and does not fully close, corner wear on presentation folder [front & back proof]Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer’s Premium. Lot 130

Bank of Bombay, India, TOP POP 25 Rupees, 1855-56, serial number 37667, (Pick S111a, Jhun&Rez 1B.1.2.2), in PMG holder 10 Very Good, one of only 3 graded on PMG census, both others also 10 Very Good. In this remarkable example, however, we have no NET, nor any additional comments by the grader. The Bank of Bombay issues are extremely elusive in any format and denomination, but especially issued notes and the 25 Rupees denomination even more so. A relatively intact and visually appealing example such as this will be an unmissable opportunity for any collector of India. The only other example of this type to have been offered previously was by Spink in 2009. An astoundingly rare note.Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer’s Premium. Banco Nacional Ultramarino, Mozambique, [2 notes] pair of front and back proofs for 100 Escudos, Lisbon, 24th July 1958, These attractive uniface proofs capture the development of the 100 Escudos as they were in 1958. The basic design was inherited from the issue of 16th February 1950, retaining the portrait of Aires de Ornelas on the obverse and the gateway of the Fortress of São Sebastião on Mozambique Island on the reverse, while introducing the circular seal of the Banco Nacional Ultramarino at left. By 1958 the constitutional reforms of 1951 (Portugal's colonies having been redesignated as overseas provinces) rendered the former legends "Colónia Portuguesa" and "Pagável na Colónia de Moçambique" obsolete. The reverse proof accordingly reads "Pagável na Província de Moçambique", but a manuscript instruction on the mounting card replaces this in turn with the simpler "Pagável em Moçambique" found on the issued notes.Further annotations specify the Series B numbering and that the Portuguese coat of arms should measure 25mm in height. The obverse bears the date 24th July 1958 and cites Decree-Law No. 39221 of 25th May 1953, which authorised a new agreement between the Portuguese Government and the Banco Nacional Ultramarino.Aires de Ornelas (1866-1930) was closely associated with Portuguese rule in Mozambique. He served in the military campaigns of 1895, became chief of staff to Mouzinho de Albuquerque and was appointed Governor of the District of Lourenço Marques in 1905, before serving as Minister of the Navy and Overseas Affairs. The gateway on the reverse belongs to the Fortress of São Sebastião, constructed between 1558 and 1620 on Mozambique Island, one of the principal strongholds guarding Portugal's maritime route through the Indian Ocean.(Pick 107 for type, PAPM MZ212dp), proofs good extremely fine, mounting boards with some minor staining and handling, an exceptional pair of working proofs documenting the final development of this issueSubject to 20% VAT on Buyer’s Premium. Charlton, former Confidential Clerk to Sir Robert Howe, the Governor-General of Sudan from 1947-54. The letter reads:"These are genuine currency notes issued by General Gordon the Governor-General of the Sudan during the siege of Khartoum by Mohammed Ahmed El Mahdi from March 1883 to 25th January 1885.There were some 15,000 people in the town when General-Gordon arrived there on the 18th February 1884 to evacuate the garrison and civil population to the safety of Egypt. He succeeded in evacuating several hundred civilians by steamer up the Nile to Berber and then by camel train to Egypt before the Mahdi's forces cut off the escape route.When Khartoum fell the Mahdi's troops pillaged the town and killed most of the male inhabitants. The women and children were shared out as slaves among the tribal leaders. General Gordon was killed on the steps of his palace and his head severed from his body and taken to the Mahdi's camp across the Nile at Omdurman where it was left hanging in a tree in front of the Mahdi's tent.Towards the end of the siege everything was in short supply, even the normal Egyptian currency as the fleeing refugees took all the cash they could raise back with them to Egypt. General Gordon then had his accountant prepare currency notes by hand and they were used to pay the troops and the merchants from whom he was buying desperately needed supplies for the town.The translation of the Arabic writing on the notes. In the oblong the amount in words, in the smaller design beneath it, circle, rectangle, diamond, etc., the registered number of the note. Underneath this is. "This Money we accept to pay from the Treasury Khartoum or Egypt after six months from the date 25th April 1884. Gordon Pasha." The large stamp, Sudan Governor-General's Office and the smaller stamp is Gordon's personal stamp showing his name in Arabic.These notes were given to me by the Governor-General of the Sudan Sir Robert Howe in 1954."Signed K. Charlton,Ex Confidential Clerk to His Excellency the Governor-GeneralAlso included is an original vellum envelope from "The Palace, Khartoum" and two more hand- and type-written notes relating to the banknotes.A very rare note with extraordinary provenance tracing back through a successor of General Gordan to the Palace at Khartoum (1 banknote and 4 other pieces)Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium. Lot 272

Government of Gibraltar, [2 notes] hand-executed essays for proposed issue of 10 Pounds, ND (ca. 1977-1988), A fascinating set mounted on card, providing a fascinating insight into the design process and evolution of Government of Gibraltar banknotes. Produced by Colin Roger Braun, a world banknote designer for Bradbury Wilkinson and Harrison & Sons. Braun began working for Bradbury in 1977 and Harrison's in 1987, suggesting that these designs may represent a proposed redesign or development of the existing 1975 10 Pound issue, which was ultimately not adopted.The most intriguing aspect is the comparability between these proofs and the adopted 1975-1986 issues printed by Thomas de la Rue. Braun retains the established portrait of a young Queen Elizabeth II by Anthony Buckley in the same pose and style, showing the Queen wearing Queen Alexandra's Kokoshnik Tiara. Whilst maintaining similarities to the issued notes, Braun experiments with the surrounding composition, colourways and decorative elements.Many elements are reduced to basic lines and a reduction in the guilloche decorative technique that we see and recognise on many Government of Gibraltar notes, suggesting that we may be looking at one of Braun's early design developments where his focus is to test new compositions.The design features the 'Ragged Staff Gates' on the reverse; historic fortification openings with an interesting link to Gibraltar's history. An intriguing choice of design which has not been seen on any issued Government of Gibraltar banknote. The most comparable design can be seen on the 5 Pounds 1995 issue featuring another fortification opening, the Southport Gates.The design is completed in colour pencil, with the example signature of Traynor in fine pen, which also appears on issued £10, £20 and £50 notes dated 1986.(Pick unlisted), uncirculated, mounted on card, presented in a Harison & Sons Limited presentation folder (front & back essays)Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer’s Premium. For more information please view Terms and Conditions for Buyers.

Lot 273

Government of Gibraltar, [2 notes] hand-executed essays for proposed issue of 20 Pounds, ND (ca. 1977-1988), An intriguing set mounted on card, providing a fascinating insight into the design process and evolution of Government of Gibraltar banknotes. Produced by Colin Roger Braun, a world banknote designer for Bradbury Wilkinson and Harrison & Sons. Braun began working for Bradbury in 1977 and Harrison's in 1987, suggesting that these designs may represent a proposed redesign or development of the existing 1975 20 Pound issue, which was ultimately not adopted.Similarly to the previous lot, the design features a gate, this time 'Prince Edwards Gate', a fortification which was opened in 1790 fortification, which cuts through the Charles V Wall. An intriguing design which is unique in its composition and different from the 1975 issue featuring the parliament house. The most comparable design can be seen on the 5 Pound 1995 issue, featuring the Southport gates. The design also features Gibraltar's national bird, the Barbary Partridge, a particularly interesting detail given its resemblance to the bird imagery later featured on the 1995-2004 banknote issues.The design is completed in colour pencil, with the example signature of Traynor in fine pen, which also appears on issued £10, £20 and £50 notes dated 1986. Mounted onto card and presented in a 'Harrison & Sons' presentation folder.(Pick unlisted), uncirculated, mounted on card, presented in a Harison & Sons Limited presentation folder, small stain of front proof (front & back essays)Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer’s Premium. Lot 274

Government of Gibraltar, [2 notes] hand-executed essays for proposed issue of 50 Pounds, ND (ca. 1977-1988), An intriguing set mounted on card, providing a fascinating insight into the design process and evolution of Government of Gibraltar banknotes. Produced by Colin Roger Braun, a world banknote designer for Bradbury Wilkinson and Harrison & Sons. Comparable to the 1986 £50 issue.Similarly to the previous lot, the design features a gate, this time the 'Southport Gates', a 16th-century fortification, which cuts through the Charles V Wall. An intriguing choice of subject, the gates have not previously featured as the main design element of a Gibraltar banknote, occupying the majority of the composition. The closest comparable design can be seen on the 1995 £5 issue, which depicts the Southport Gates alongside the Queen's portrait on the obverse.The design appears more refined than the previous two lots, incorporating guilloche decorative techniques comparable to those seen on the 1986 issue.The design is completed in coloured pencil, with an example signature of Traynor in fine pen, which also appears on issued £10, £20 and £50 notes dated 1986. Also incorporating silver metallic pen or paint markings, together with what appears to be a white-pen overlay applied over the guilloche.(Pick unlisted), uncirculated, mounted on card, presented in a Harison & Sons Limited presentation folder, small stain of front essay (front & back essays)Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer’s Premium. Lot 286

Palestine Currency Board, a hand-executed front essay for a proposed issue of 1 Pound, 1st January 1927, serial number 000000, This fascinating, unadopted essay was produced by designer Colin Braun for Bradbury Wilkinson for the newly established Palestine Currency Board. The intricate design incorporates separately affixed elements depicting the Citadel of Jerusalem, decorative guilloche, and text.The first dated issue was in September 1927, making this early January 1927 piece incredibly appealing. The importance of the piece lies in the exceptionally narrow historical window to which it belongs. In November 1926, three major banknote printing companies were being considered to print the design, and on the 17th December 1926, the Board approved the decision to work with De La Rue instead of Bradbury Wilkinson & Co. This essay is tangible evidence of an alternative design of what could have been the 1 Pound issue.The design elements differ significantly from the De La Rue note adopted. It was decided in Palestine Currency Board meetings occurring in November-December 1926, that an identical design was to be used for all four high denominations to cut costs, and that the Tower of David was being considered as a suitable motif (Dabbah, pp. 109-111). The imagery of the Tower of David did make it onto the final issued notes and can be found on the reverse of all of the 1927-45 issues, but it was never used on the obverse as a focal design feature. This makes the design entirely unique.In 2018, Spink offered another exceptional Palestinian essay: a 50 Pound, 1926 essay from the Shlomo Tepper Collection, which achieved exceptional results. This appears to be one of Spink's most exciting Palestine essay offerings in quite some time. (Pick unlisted), uncirculated, mounted on board, minor pencil marks right edge, tape on reverse with printed torn lettering stating 'kindly make all alternations', paper label affixed on top of board with text 'Designed by Bradbury Wilkinson & Co Ltd'Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer’s Premium. Banca Nationala, Romania, hand-executed back essay for 500 Lei, 1934, Reverse is handstamped with two dates '18th May 1934' & '15th June 1934' suggesting that this was a preliminary design for the back of the August 1934 Issue. The composition retains the colours used in the adopted issue but experiments with a circular frame, differing from the square border of the final design.A sheet of tracing paper has been attached with tape to the reverse of the board, allowing it to be flipped over the design. It bears the instruction: 'NOTE: KINDLY MAKE ALL ALTERATIONS OR ADDITIONS TO SKETCH ON THIS SHEET ONLY'. This provides an interesting insight into the practical design process and the method by which alterations were communicated.(Pick 36 for type), uncirculated, mounted on board, paper label affixed on top of board with text 'Designed by Bradbury Wilkinson & Co Ltd', tracing paper overlay has been torn and has large pieces missing, small pen or pencil mark in the empty watermark area (back progressive proof)Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer’s Premium. South African Reserve Bank, South Africa, [2 notes] front and back essays for 1 Rand, ca (1960s), serial number C/1 000000, This piece was produced during a significant period in the colonial history of South Africa. As stated on the Reserve Bank website, South Africa continued to use the British Coin system until 1961, when South Africa gained independence and became a republic. On 14th February 1961, the rand, replaced the pound and remained active until 1967. In 1961-65 we see the use of the 1 Rand in Pick 102-103. This essay, although similar to Pick 103, employs different design features, suggesting either a new adaptation of the existing design or a previous idea for what could have been the issued note. The most striking difference in the issued notes by Bradbury Wilkinson & Co. is the significant variation in the portrait of Jan van Riebeeck. Riebeeck was a Dutch explorer and pioneer who played a significant role in the history of South Africa. He established a trading station on behalf of the Dutch East India Company, with the settlement later developing into Cape Town. What makes this essay particularly interesting is the side-profile portrait of Riebeeck, unlike the frontal view used on issued South African banknotes.(Pick unlisted, visually comparable to Pick 103), uncirculated, mounted on board, board attached to paper and card, paper label affixed on top of card with text 'Designed by Bradbury Wilkinson & Co Ltd' (front and back essays)Subject to 20% VAT on Buyer's Premium.
