Chile, red vulcanite 5 peso token, ND (1904), control number 1854, diameter 70mm, legends 'Oficina Alemania' and 'Vale Para La Pulperia'. The tokens were used by workers in the secluded but self-sufficient satellite villages around the nitrate extraction companies in the desert regions in northern Chile. It was a fixed price system as a means to combat inflation. During the 1890s, Chile was responsible for four-fifths of the world's total inorganic nitrate production, hence there were many different nitrate extraction companies in the region and each pulperia had its own token system. About Uncirculated. Interesting
