Estimate
HK$30,000 to HK$40,000

Lot 1089

(x) Kwangsi Bank, China, 1 yuan, 2nd Year of Xuantong (1909), no serial number, black and grey, fantasy Kwangsi dollar at centre flanked by two dragons, with "lung" character stamps at top, (Pick S2345), PMG 15. An excessively rare piece with only 3 examples known TO THIS DAY. Kwangsi has traditionally been an area heavy with trade to rest of Asia and rest of the world during the time. The Kwangsi mint was established in 1667 and stopped operation in 1861. After that, much of the currency used in the areas were trade dollars from other countries. There were always plans for local government officials to establish mints much like Kwangtung has successfully done but this was rejected by the central government. Therefore this note is one the first consolidation of currency in Kwangsi in over 50 years. Notes were printed in Japan with a print run of 100,000, whereas the 5 yuan of the same series had a print run of 200,000. Considering the volume of trade in the area of the time combined with the limited print run, it is no surprise only 3 survived to this day! At one point this note held the world record for a Chinese banknote sold in auction at Spink. Highly important in Chinese monetary history.

Estimate
HK$360,000 to HK$420,000

Lot 1090

(x) China, Qing Dynasty, a set of 'Kesi' silk Crane Rank Badges for the 1st rank civil official, including back badge and split front badge, both back and front badges with identical pattern, size 30.5x32cm. The phoenix symbolizes the empress, while the crane ranks second only to the phoenix among auspicious birds and has long represented the highest official rank. This rank badge retains magnificent colours and intricate gold thread work, with the crane vividly depicted. Though a few threads are loose, it is rarely seen in a complete front and back set. Minor imperfections do not diminish its exceptional charm

Estimate
HK$18,000 to HK$25,000

Lot 1224

(x) China, Qing Dynasty, a 'Kesi' silk Tiger Rank Badge for 4th rank military court, back badge, size 28.5x 30.5cm. During the Qing dynasty, the fourth-rank tiger rank badge was worn by officials such as Second-Class Imperial Bodyguards, Company Commanders, Superintendents of the Southern Hunting Park, Chief Palace Eunuchs, District Commanders, and Assistant Regional Commanders. This fine example is superbly preserved - the 'Wang' (King) character on the tiger's forehead is well defined, and the tiger's body is intricately worked with golden threads. The portrayal is both majestic and vividly executed, conveying great power and dignity

Estimate
HK$8,000 to HK$12,000
